"We're excited to elevate the tips and tricks from our reader-favorite 'Get It Done!' franchise through this innovative, multi-channel experience. From finally putting up that gallery wall to rethinking your landscaping, our step-by-step guides help you cross off those lingering 'someday' tasks from your list and make your home more functional and personal along the way," said REAL SIMPLE Editor in Chief Lauren Iannotti.

Consumers can engage with the Home via interactive hotspots that detail home renovation projects that pack big impact with little effort. Through room renderings, project details, and shoppable products needed to get it done, these virtual vignettes explore the topics that the REAL SIMPLE audience loves the most: design, organizing, cleaning, and sustainability. Projects include how to hang a TV and hide all the wires, clutter-proof your closet, give your fireplace a face-lift, set your home up for safety, and other ideas across the kitchen, bedroom, laundry room, and outdoor space.

Sponsors for the "Get It Done!" virtual experience include 3M Claw, Command Brand, Elkay, Endless Summer, and The Container Store. The architect for the Virtual Home is RS Mannino Architects + Builders and Sarah Rhinehart Fleischer, SRF Interiors is the designer for the experience.
