Investopedia Announces the 2023 INV100 Most Influential Financial Advisors

NEW YORK, July 11, 2023 /PRNewswire/ -- Today Investopedia announces the2023 Investopedia 100 Most Influential Financial Advisors. The INV100 list honors independent U.S.-based financial advisors who have demonstrated a top-of-the-industry commitment to financial literacy and education by using their social and traditional media platforms to amplify their messages.

"The Investopedia 100 is our favorite celebration of the year because we get to honor financial advisors who believe in the power of financial literacy and education," said Caleb Silver, editor-in-chief of Investopedia. "These professionals are elevating their clients, colleagues, the financial planning industry and their communities, and it's our honor to recognize them."

To determine this year's honorees, Investopedia's data science and editorial teams measured each advisor's domain authority of their personal blog or website, followers across social media and podcasts, participation in workshops, programs, nonprofits or collaborations to spread financial education, and peer nominations by industry professionals outside of their own firms.
